NEWS OF PARADISE BRIEFLY OUTLINED

Small Portion of Annual Work Has Been Accomplished on Mining Claims.

(Paradise Record) Taken as a whole, the Paradise district is looking up a little, and the San Simon valley looks much brighter.

The Savage, a company that is well financed, is shipping ore and installing expensive machinery preparatory to mining in dead surface.

The Willie Rose recently made an unusually big and rich strike on its very promising property. A force of six men is at work, and there is understood to be money in the treasury sufficient to go ahead and make a fine showing if, as generally believed, there should prove to be enough ore to do so. At any rate it is admitted by everyone that there is rich ore enough in sight to make at least one very profitable shipment.

The Bisbee-Sonora company is still at work.

The Virtue will resume work soon, and, from the fine indications upon the surface, good things are hoped for, at no distant date, in the tunnel.

At the Nippers, the property of Duffer Bros., an important strike of rich ore has just been made. It is in the same lead as the Doran and Gallagher group, on which there is a 120-foot vertical shaft all in low-grade ore and mineralized porphyry, improvement with depth being continuous. The two are adjoining properties.

So far this year only a small portion of the annual work usually accomplished here has been done for 1908. There will probably be nearly if not quite as much as there was last year, it is true that the Manhattan is in possession of patents on most claims of its group, and in fact does not need to do any more annual work—arriving possible technicalities—on any claim for which application for patent has been made. But it should be remembered that the same principle applied last year, when for this reason very little work was done on the property. Hence, so far as the Manhattan is concerned, the difference would hardly be noticed should more work be performed on that property this year. On the other hand, it is not impossible that the company will begin development operations before the end of the year. However, we are not informed as to the intentions of the company. By the general public, the company's haste to finish the patent business is regarded variously. Some think it is a favorable sign for the immediate future, while others do not.

Besides this, we know that deals are pending in regard to three different properties, the conclusion of any one of which would mean increased operations, and one of them would be of great importance to the district.

In the expenditure of $12,000 or $13,000 on the new irrigation system, the larger part of the money will remain at home. Portal and Rodeo getting the most of it, and Paradise deriving some benefit. But this is not all—it is only the beginning. As the farming industry in the San Simon valley develops, Portal and Rodeo will grow, and what helps Portal helps Paradise to a certain extent. With more money in circulation, there will be more annual work done on mining claims, thus keeping some of the money in circulation.

Then eventually it will be necessary to enlarge the irrigation system, which will cause the entire situation to be adjusted all the way around.

The valley future is bright. Paradise may help us very much. The farmers are the real producers, after all. They can always talk prosperity. It is they who in a large measure make the money that eventually finds its way into mining properties. It might pay us to cultivate their acquaintance.

As for the new irrigation system and the San Simon—it is a starter that will result in the making of the valley. And the beauty of the proposition is that it will not be necessary to wait long for results. The reclamation of the great and fertile San Simon valley is almost at hand.

HANGS IN BALANCE PLACE IN CONGRESS

FATE OF CARLISLE INDIAN SCHOOL IS UNCERTAIN.

Proposition of Interior Department to Distribute Pupils Among Reservation Schools Raises Vigorous Opposition.

There is a controversy over the Carlisle Indian school which is likely to assume large proportions before the question of the continuance or the abandonment of the school is settled, and the situation has been accentuated by the recent resignation of Maj. William A. Mercer, U. S. A., as superintendent. The main issue is whether young Indians can be better educated on the reservations of their tribes or away from them. The second question is whether the school should have a semi-military character or not.

Maj. Mercer has been said to be wedded to the idea of making Carlisle

Girls of the School at Dumb-Bell Drill.

In its organization and aims—so far as the male pupils are concerned—a purely military school. This he has pronounced to be untrue. Gen. Pratt, who was the founder of the school and its head for 24 years, was in training and experience a military man. He gave to the institution the ground work of the military features, slight as they are, which it now has. From the beginning the boys have been organized into companies, with their captains and other officers. From the beginning they have been drilled with arms, much as army recruits are drilled. From the beginning they have worn the blue army uniform, and the company officers have been distinguished by chevrons of gold lace.

It is feared by those who are opposed to the abandonment of the school that if the national government confines its education of the Indians to schools on the reservations, the military features in all of them will be intensified. It is, in fact, admitted that, without such an appeal to the hereditary tastes of the Indian, the greatest difficulty that the whole scheme of Indian education will have to contend with will be the prevention of absenteeism. This can not be checked in the wild western country, unless the parents of the boys and girls wish them to remain at school. The surest way to overcome their prejudice against the white man's learning is to touch upon their military instinct.

Carlisle Indian school was opened on October 5, 1879, with 82 Sioux boys and girls as pupils. It rapidly expanded, until it has represented at one time as many as 88 tribes. It has at present enrolled more than 1,000 students. The boys outnumber the girls by nearly 200. They are quartered in separate buildings, and a rigid separation of sexes is enforced, boys and girls meeting only under the eyes of teachers or disciplinary staff at the common exercises in classrooms or at social entertainments. The campus, beautifully laid out in drill ground, tennis and croquet courts, flower beds and artistic gardens, is a most picturesque one. It embraces 29 acres of land, on which the dwelling, school, industrial, administrative buildings, numbering 38, are grouped. Surrounding the whole are 270 acres of farm land, where the classes in agriculture receive practical instruction. The buildings are mostly three-storied, usually of brick, with sun-exposed verandas, lighted by electricity, heated by steam, and in every respect modern in equipment. A network of granolithic pavements unite the various buildings. The winter gymnasium, with a ground area of 128 by 45, has complete athletic apparatus, a running track, an armory, baths, a reading room, debating society quarters and a large Y. M. C. A. hall. Protestant and Catholic services are held every Sunday.

In the academic department the aim is to give the pupils of both sexes an elementary English education embracing language, history, literature, arithmetic, geography, music and drawing. The industrial department teaches the boys carpentry, blacksmithing, printing, tailoring, wagon-making, carriage and house painting, calendering, upholstering, tin-smithing, shoemaking, harness-making, steam fitting, plumbing, farming, bricklaying, masonry, cement work. Every boy must elect a trade.

The school is supported by an annual appropriation by congress of $163,000. It has 15 academic and 15 industrial instructors, and the total number of employees is 80.

New York paid last year $21,000,000 in interest, and will pay this year $24,000,000, about the same as the federal government.

A Paris newspaper quotes Roosevelt as saying: "I am after my fashion, a conservative." So, he is also the author of a new fashion.

FILIPINO DELEGATES COME TO REPRESENT ISLANDS.

Interesting Personalities of the Two Men Chosen by the Native Assembly as Representatives at Washington.

Naturally Americans will be much interested in the two Filipinos who have just come to this country as representatives of the Philippine islands in the congress of the United States. Benito Legarda and Pablo Ocampo de Leon were duly elected delegates by the island assembly which

SENOR BENITO LEGARDA

Secretary Taft was instrumental in opening on his recent visit to Manila, and their appearance at Washington marks the beginning of actual participation by Filipinos in the administration of the United States government. It happens that there is considerable similarity in the lives of Senors Legarda and Ocampo. Both were born in the same year, 1853, in the district of Manila; both were educated in the University of Santo Tomas, both studied law and received a degree; in time both espoused the cause of the Filipino people against the oppression of Spain, and participated in the so-called Tagalog rebellion, which preceded the Spanish-American war, and which brought Emilio Aguinaldo into prominence; both were members of the so-called Philippine republic, and of the Malolos congress, and since American authority has been definitely established in the islands both have been conservative in their views, although holding different opinions about many important matters.

After the American occupation of Manila and during the interim which preceded hostilities between the United States and the so-called Philippine republic, Senor Legarda was a member of the insurgent congress which sat at Malolos. Some time, however, before the capture of Manila, Legarda became dissatisfied with the attitude of the more radical members of the congress, and returned to Manila, where he apparently resumed his former affairs. Here he became now the object of strong suspicion on the part of the American authorities, but he succeeded in gaining the confidence of Gen. Otia, who frequently consulted him.

Senor Ocampo has had a more picturesque career. Although now classed with the conservative element, he remained with the insurgents at the recorder of the Republican congress until convinced that further armed resistance was useless. He was captured by the American forces, brought to Manila, and released on parole by the military authorities, who were then trying to conciliate by kindness and consideration the leaders of the insurrection movement. Ocampo was, however, too strong a partisan and of too bold a disposition to remain silent under such circumstances. He assisted in editing a newspaper, La Patria, which adopted a critical attitude toward the American regime. This conduct finally led to his arrest and deportation to Guam, in company with other leading Filipinos. After the establishment of the civil government he was permitted to return.

A Western boy died the other day from the effects of a bee sting in the ear. Which, alas, reminds us of all the men who listened to the buzzing of the political bee and went to their graves feeling that they were stung.

Today's market shows little or no change from that of yesterday, although stocks in general are a trifle weaker. It is very likely that the entire list will stay at or near those prices for some time to come, although it is more probable that they will advance rather than so the other way, due to the fact that stocks have already declined to such a low point that it is almost impossible to see lower figures. Owing to an error in reading the statement of the Wolverine & Arizona it should have read, and there will be no call within the next six months, as per reports from the east. Superior & Pittsburg shows weakness, although the offerings are very light. Denza-Arizona and Butte are also inclined to show further weakness. Greene Cananea holds firm at 8, with but little coming out.

The New York market closed weak and lifeless, closing about as it opened. All exchanges will be closed Friday and Saturday.

April 16th, 1908.

The market has been very dead all day and very narrow. Very little business has been done.

There will be no market tomorrow or Saturday, owing to tomorrow being good Friday. There will not be any in Boston or New York until Tuesday, owing to the holidays.

The local stocks are very quiet and firm and are simply a lot of dead ones. Butte Arizona is quoted at 25 bid, 35 asked, and seems a good buy.

DON'T RISK

The chance of being swept financially out of existence by neglecting the matter of fire insurance. It is a short-sighted policy. When well insured, you feel the solid rock beneath your feet. The ringing of the fire-bell does not give you nervous prostration and you can go to sleep at night feeling that the touch of a match can not spell your ruin. I would be glad to show you some figures on insurance. Possibly you have wrong ideas on the subject of rates. I represent a splendid line of companies.

SUBMARINES FOR MANILA

NEW YORK, April 18.—With the Shark and the Porpoise, two of the submarines of the first torpedo boat flotilla, headed to her decks, the big naval collier Caesar left the Brooklyn navy yard today enroute for the Philippines, there to launch the submarines in Sabag Bay, where they will become an important part of the Corregidor Island defenses, guarding Manila. The two submarines rest in cradles so constructed on the deck of the collier that they will hold the little boats safely, no matter how high the waves or how fierce the winds. It would only be a matter of a few minutes to launch the little vessels should that be necessary between New York and Manila. This is made possible by an arrangement by which the inner sides of the cradles can be reared up to form ways, over which the submarines may slide into the sea. In exactly the same manner that big battleships are launched at the ship-building yards.
